WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The proposal to legalize light wines was defeated today in the House Ways and Means committee by the vote of 14 to 9 with members of the "wine bloc" blaming beer interests for their results.

The backers of light wines immediately announced they would continue their fight both in the House and Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The House girded itself for another battle over prohibition today, with Democratic leaders planning to bring the new 3.2 per cent beer bill up for passage next Tuesday.

Democratic leaders, who inaugurated the beer bill drive as a platform pledge and to obtain revenue, were confident that the bill will pass by a fair margin.

A new fight for a separate bill legalizing light wines was under way by the "wine bloc" today, with the Ways and Means committee pledged to consider the question of reporting a wine measure. Wine backers predicted approval.

STRENGTH SHOWN

The two to one vote in the Ways and Means committee for the beer measure was accepted by the House wets—and some dries—as an indication of sufficient strength to insure passage of the bill.

The dries, nevertheless, were prepared to fight the beer proposal to the limit. They recalled that Democratic leaders also predicted passage of the Garner repeal resolution, but it failed by six votes.

Many amendments will be proposed to the beer measure, with the result that it may be materially changed on the floor.

Efforts will be made to reduce the alcoholic content to 2.75 per cent, raise the tax from $5.00 to $7.50 a barrel, restrict sale to bottles and outlaw the saloon.

Rep. O'Connor (D) of New York, co-author of the O'Connor bill of last year and an outstanding wet leader, announced that he would propose an increase in the tax on beer from $5.00 to $7.50 a barrel.

Some of the wine advocates indicated that they would seek to write a wine provision into the bill on the floor, but parliamentary experts said that this would be impossible.

"I think that the bill will pass, although I cannot say by what vote," said Rep. Bauey, Democratic leader. O'Connor predicted 240 votes for the bill.

Prosecuting Attorney Russell Cunningham advised Laessle to pay them $100 in marked bills and then have them arrested but they apparently became wary and disappeared.

bodies of many more dead when thorough search of the ruins was made.

It was the first fire to occur in a large building in the history of the city and completely nonplussed the Japanese firefighters, who found themselves without proper equipment to cope with it. They had no hook and ladder equipment and insufficient water pressure.

When the fire broke out, the customers and employees rushed for possible means of escape, some flinging themselves from windows, while others rushed to the roof, where the store's zoo was located.

FIGHT TO ESCAPE

Bears and monkey in the store zoo fought desperately to escape, their cries piercing the roar of the flames and the shouts of frightened men and women.

Six military airplanes dropped ropes to the shoppers stranded on the roof, enabling them to lower themselves to the street or adjacent buildings.

The lions, bears, monkeys, storks, cranes and hundreds of small birds in the zoo were also saved.

The loss was partly covered by insurance, a small percentage of which was carried by American companies. The building was declared a "partial loss."

HEAT MADDENING

The store was jammed with Christmas shoppers when the fire started, spreading with lightning speed as it fed on thousands of celluloid ornaments used in elaborate decoration scheme. According to officials, a "terrible panic" ensued.

Many were maddened by the terrific heat and smoke. Troops were called out to control the mob at bayonet point. The fire raged for two hours before it was quelled.

Radcliff Warns Pickaway-Co Of 'Pseudo' Medics

Three Men, Professional Looking, Get Large Sums In Ross-Co..

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff today warned all residents of Pickaway-co to beware of any "eye specialists" or "radium treatment" doctors who should call upon them with propositions of cures for their ailments.

Last week three pseudo-doctors administered supposed treatments to a woman in Ross-co and as a result "fleeced" her out of her savings of over $1,600.

The three alleged doctors are now being searched for by sheriff's deputies of Ross-co and they are going under the names of Dr. Miles, Dr. Stevens and Dr. Hall.

Miles is described as being 5 feet 6-1/2 inches tall, 50 years of age, 175 pounds in weight, dark hair and wearing glasses.

Stevens is described as being 50 years of age, five feet 10 inches tall, weight 155 pounds, sandy complexion and very erect.

Hall is about 55 years of age, five feet 9 inches tall, 143 pounds, holds head slightly forward when walking, has short cropped mustache, brown hair, both hair and mustache slightly grayed. All three were well dressed and bore a professional aspect and demeanor.

Sheriff Radcliff asks that if any men purporting to be doctors of this nature make any calls in this county that his office be notified immediately.

SCOUTS TO MAKE CLOTHES CLEANUP

Saturday is the final cleanup day for clothing, the drive being sponsored by the Benevolent association. Any person having clothing to discard should notify either Mrs. G. G. Leist or Miss Nell Weldon and a Boy Scout will be sent to gather the clothing.

COLD PUTS CRIMP IN FIREMAN SHOW

Further Plea Made For Toys by Members of Department; Seek to Aid Kiddies.

Cold weather put a decided crimp in the plans of the Circleville firemen when they succeeded in making but little money in the Toy Fund Benefit Show put on by the Columbus Fireman's Band which was sponsored at the Grand Theatre Thursday night.

With Christmas but a scant eight days away the firemen again renew their pleas that more toys be brought in so that all the poor children in Circleville may have an opportunity to enjoy to the fullest the Christmas season.

Several more contributors brought toys within the past few days, they are: The Luther League, Fanny Rice, Mrs. Hulise Hays, Dudley Rader and Ann Rader.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Beer and taxes are the two subjects, next to the depression itself, which today are providing the main discussion among the people, according to the International News Service writer learned in making a swing trip to the middle west, visiting many cities including Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Louis.

SCHOOL NEWS WALNUT-TWP

Miss Elizabeth Reber, who has been at her home the past week is slowly improving.

Miss Betty Delong had as her guest over the week-end Miss Jane Brown.

Many basketball fans journeyed to Walnut Creek last Friday night to witness the games. The Walnut team were victors.

Mrs. Irene Cookson spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rebe Brown at Canal Winchester.

Miss Mary Alice Scothorn of Capital University spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Scothorn.

School will be dismissed at Walnut on Dec. 23 and resume school again on Jan. 2.

Miss Gertrude Wieser, Edgar Jones and Warren Brown attended the Walnut school Saturday night.

The P. F. A. of Walnut High will sponsor a minstrel on Thursday evening, Dec. 15.

Mrs. Clara Brown was absent from Walnut due to illness.

Miss Dorothy Jones has been absent from school the past week. Mrs. Clark Will of Circleville has been substituting.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Plum, the Misses Harriett and Anna Weaver attended a Grange meeting at Springfield on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Trone and family will move from the Leland Pettis farm to the Arthur Coon farm recently vacated by Mr. Ira Hildon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Brown and Emerson Brown and Bill Hanna spent Saturday with the Hanna's in Vinton co.

Beer is a live topic in New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee, great brewery centers where preparations are being made for the possible return of legalized beer.

TAXES DISCUSSED
Taxation is avidly discussed in the tax-ridden cities of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia.

Jobs for the unemployed is the dominating topic in Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh—and, for that matter, is an absorbing subject wherever one goes.

Business men in all cities visited seemed to feel that now, with the national election out of the way, "the air is cleared" and conditions are showing signs of a gradual improvement which may be the harbinger of a rational prosperity. Hotel men have noticed this slight betterment.

The automobile business, preparing for an active 1933, is looming as one of the most aggressive industries combating the depression.

Beer and light wines, many business men believe, may provide the "psychological nudge" necessary for general industrial improvement. The breweries and kindred industries are getting ready for a busy new era.

READY TO EMPLOY
Leading American brewers—such as August A. Busch of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., St. Louis, Fred Pabst of Milwaukee and Col. Jacob Ruppert of New York—told the writer they and other brewers are ready to employ thousands of men and spend millions of dollars for equipment in the event beer is legalized. All associated industries, they asserted, would go forward with the brewery business.

In New York, Ruppert's brewery is "ready to produce" the real stuff at a moment's notice. Other metropolitan breweries—Piel, Trommer, Doelger, Lion, Schaefer and Loewer—are overhauling their plants and Fidelio brewery has advertised stock for sale.

The U. S. brewers' academy is conducting a technical course which will turn out master brewers by next spring.

St. Louis brewers are likewise active. The brewers there plan to hire 3,000 men and spend $6,000,000 as soon as beer is legalized.

Busch, told International News Service he would spend $15,000,000 in the next three years. Other St. Louis brewers are getting busy, including the Falstaff corporation, the Griesedick brothers and the Union Brewers company.

And in Milwaukee, which may again become the "Munich of America," such famous brewers as Pabst, Schlitz and Blatz are all set for "the great day." Fred Pabst told the writer he will spend $5,000,000 for equipment and employ many men.

CERMAK READY
If beer is legalized Pabst thinks a high code of ethics should be adopted by the brewers themselves. And Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago promises that, so far as his city is concerned, the racketeers will be given no chance to "muscle in" on the brewery business in the event it is rejuvenated.

Here's the Way to Control Those Miserable Colds So Prevalent Here Now

AN epidemic of "grippy" colds seems to be developing here now. It is a situation that demands serious thought and action. Every mother, especially, knows that colds tend to pull down body resistance—that each cold paves the way for other colds and more serious ills. Don't take chances. Avoid all colds possible. Treat every cold promptly. For greatest safety and protection, follow Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds;

TO PREVENT MANY COLDS: At that first feeling of stuffiness or nasal irritation, snifle or sneeze—Nature's usual warning—that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, the new aid in preventing colds. Vicks Drops aid Nature in throwing off the infection that threatens. They prevent development of many colds.

TO END A COLD SOONER: If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. At bedtime apply Vicks VaporRub. Its direct double action—continuing through the night—brings quicker relief. During the day use the convenient Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed. They add comfort—help shorten the cold.

Lutheran Brotherhood Nominates Officers; Enjoys Christmas Party

Despite the cold weather about 50 persons attended the Lutheran brotherhood meeting Thursday evening at the parish house. After a short business session a lunch was served by Clarence Wolf and his committee.

Rev. George L. Troutman opened the program with a chalk talk on "Our Lutheran Church Week." This talk was followed by a lively discussion, and George Troutman followed with a black board talk "Expenses of the Church in 1932." E. E. Wolf gave a paper on "Christmas Carols" and C. L. Mack read, "There is a Santa Claus." J. D. Hummel recited "The Forgotten Child" by Tim Thrift and J. R. Noecker talked on the real meaning of Christmas. Several holiday songs were sung by the brotherhood closing with "Silent Night."

Officers nominated to be elected at the next meeting included the following: For president, C. G. Chalfin, J. D. Hummel and Cl-ence Helvering; vice president, E. C. Ebert, Malcolm F. Parrett and Carl C. Leitz; secretary, George Gibbs, Charles Weldinger and Hillard Gehres; treasurer, Emerson Martin, Harry Kerns and Charles Eitel; reporting secretary, J. R. Noecker, M. A. Sensenbrenner and Ludwig Haecker.

The next meeting will be Thursday, Dec. 29, with Marion Sensenbrenner in charge.

Christmas Trade

THE period of Christmas trade is the high tide of retail business for the year, and it makes a big difference to Circleville where the money spent at this season shall go. Shall we back up our own industries, support our own trade, and thereby give our community a good business start for 1933? Or shall we let this money drift hither and thither, and be largely dissipated, as far as the welfare of our community is concerned?

Our merchants have done a very fine job in preparation for the holiday season. They have provided themselves with splendid assortments of every kind of thing that can be needed for holiday gifts or the needs of the winter. Every wish that your friends may have, every need of their households, can be supplied in these stores of ours. They are rich with the best modern products, assembled from all over the world.

It is like visiting some fine exposition to go through our stores at this season, when the stocks reach their maximum figure, and see how completely they are provided for every kind of modern need.

Another marvelous feature of their service is the low prices now offered. The products of the world have come down to hard rock in production costs, and have placed their merchandise on the market at prices that have not been seen since the World War. It is not going to be expensive to supply your families and friends with nice and appropriate gifts for this Christmas season.

Let us buy our gifts at once, remembering how much overwork we shall save to store and postal employees, if we distribute the Christmas rush as much as possible. Buy early and buy at home, should be the slogans of the Christmas trade.

Christmas always reminds some persons to do their shopping early next Christmas.

Overfed Tax-Eaters

THERE have been officeholders since the very beginning of recorded history at least. And, naturally, there have been taxpayers for the same length of time. The two go hand in hand. They are inseparable. One cannot exist without the other.

Since the officeholder depends for his very existence upon the taxpayer, one would think that occasionally at least, he would express his appreciation to the man who pays his salary. But history, so far as we know, gives no example of any such expression of gratitude.

Taxpayers, however, have repeatedly shown their appreciation of the sacrifices and patriotic service of the public servants by keeping the public trough full of course the officeholders and jobholders could argue that if they hadn't helped themselves the trough might have run dry.

Wearing time has come and the sucklings resist. They cannot understand why the taxpayers should refuse to continue supporting them in the manner to which they have been accustomed. Why, they demand, should they be made to suffer merely because stupid taxpayers are suffering? The loyal slave should gladly undergo every torture for his master. (They finally admit that they have been the masters, not the servants of the people.)

It is hard to put even the parasite on his own, especially when you are responsible for having made him a parasite. The people could not do it if there was any way out. Why did no one foresee the evil consequences of building up that vast army of government dependents?

WHUDDLE!

By FRANCIS WALLACE
 A GREAT FOOTBALL ROMANCE

SYNOPSIS

Ted Wynne leaves his position in the steel mill at Bellport to work his way through college. He loves Barb Poth, daughter of wealth, and realizes he could never ask her to marry a mill hand. At Old Dominion, Ted follows promise as a football player. Tom Stone, star player and one of Bellport's elite, is antagonistic towards him. When Ted is forced to give up football because it conflicts with his job, Barney Mack, the coach, gets him a position that will not interfere. Ted passes his examinations with honors and wins the respect of his classmates. He goes home for a visit.

CHAPTER III

Across the river the bessemer converter belched its ruddy flame into the cold morning sky—blowing iron into steel by the terrific force of air that came through the holes of tuyeres and fought its way through the molten mass to freedom, carrying with it the dross; then Flannagan would dump eighty-six pounds of manganese into the five tons of purified iron and it would become steel—magic stuff, manganese.

Ted's steps led away from the furnace mill this morning, towards joy and hope; it was symbolic—he was in the converter himself, now, being blown and tossed about; being purged of the dross. His flame was muddy and red, now, but near the end it might be smooth and brilliant. He could understand the blowing of strong currents through his being; but he would still be iron unless somebody provided the magic manganese; and what was the manganese?

Life was interesting, if you lived it; if you climbed from the valley prison to the top of the hill and challenged the wind to blow.

He had come a day early to surprise his parents. Stealing softly around to the kitchen he looked through the window. His mother, with a flannel kimono over her nightgown, was preparing breakfast—he could smell the coffee; she was getting old but was still pretty, especially when her face was flushed like that. His father was warming his shoes before the stove—a habit.

Ostensibly preparing for one more in a long succession of days in the mill and home—going about his business; but Ted knew he was there, that life was over for these two except as he lived it.

The idea frightened him. He pulled his hat down and knocked at the kitchen door. "Who can that be at this hour?" Mother's voice was a little strange but his father's was as rough and strident as always in the morning.

"It's a bum. Send him away; there's plenty of work." Ted knocked vigorously. "You never can tell whose boy he might be," his mother said. The door opened, giving out a rush of warm air. Ted head down, mumbled.

"Lady, I'm out of work. Could you give me a cup of coffee?" "Step in, poor boy; we've only got a bite but you're welcome."

His father looked resentful. Ted sat down at the end of the table while his mother went to the stove. He banged on the table and roared: "How long does a fellow have to wait on some breakfast around here anyhow?"

His mother turned swiftly, dropped the cup of coffee on the floor: "My boy!"

His father smiled before breakfast for the first time in twenty years.

Ted did a lot of talking, during the meal and was very cocky. He had been away a long time; many times he had planned this homecoming—and every play had worked perfectly.

"Sorry—going with Tom," she replied. "Where have you been all week?"

"Come on, seven—Barbie needs shoes."

Yes—Barbie needed shoes like the moon needed light. Barbie got her seven. She usually did; but not because she needed it. Barb liked to gamble with the boys—poker, blackjack, craps; she howled when she lost but she usually won; she always won from Ted.

"Come on, Ambitious, what this time?"

It had started as a nickel game in a corner of the kitchen during Janet's party. Barb had found the game and it began to go up. She had pooled with Stone against the gang. Ted had lost seven dollars.

"Pitch in, Wynne; quitting!"

Stone's voice was sarcastic. Barb's eyes were tempting, taunting, smiling, daring. It was always a contest with Barb. Ted went through his pockets; counted his money; put a dime back and shoved the rest in the pot.

"Ten cents for carfare home—shooting seven bucks."

Stone's eyebrows lifted. Barb's eyes glittered. Ted had not gone above a dollar previously. She counted out the money.

"My dice—shooting seven bucks."

"All right—you're faded."

"Barbie needs a permanent—come on, seven."

Sev came. Stone counted the money. Barb smiled triumphantly into Ted's eyes.

"You can't beat me," she said softly, "at anything."

Ted had a lot of time to think about that remark for he went to work before the furnace the next morning. He had lost his carfare back to school and, although he might have dipped into his bank account, kept his budget straight by working for the money—three days pulling up would do it. The weather was cold and he could do

Barb had been pleasant the first evening—eyes enchantingly free of mockers, dewy with sweetness, a promise of heaven the girl of his dreams; a blonde elfin beauty—slender, willowy, evanescent.

But Barb couldn't stay that way long—when life became a shimmering pool in a garden she threw rocks into the pool; when she had seen how things were between him and Stone she had deliberately played around with Tom. Ted had taken an emotional liking; and he couldn't beat her even at a crap game.

Barb had his number. She knew it, and she rubbed it in. What could he do about it? He loved her very perversely; and you couldn't do more than shoot the works.

Some time she might shoot box cars and lose—and Ted knew he wouldn't ever rub it in. It hurt too much—a girl could hurt a boy, but a boy shouldn't hurt a girl.

He called to ask her to the New Year's Eve dance at the Club.

"Sorry—going with Tom," she replied. "Where have you been all week?"

"Had to catch up on some work."

"Janet hasn't got a date."

Beware of Sure-Cure For Cancer

Most of Them Useless and Many of Them
Are Dangerous

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND
 United States Senator from New York.
 Former Commissioner of Health,
 New York City.

RECENTLY, WHEN the newspapers printed the story of a man who had been poisoned by drinking radium water, nationwide interest was aroused. Such preparations as were used in this case, as well as other remedies claimed to be cancer cures, have been submitted to careful investigation for years. False claims have been exposed and the public has been warned against doubtful remedies and "sure cures", particularly for cancer and tuberculosis.

For a generation the scientific world has worked untiringly in an effort to discover a cure for cancer. No certain means of relief has been found to date, but valuable knowledge concerning cancer has been revealed.

In Early Stages

It is the opinion of leading authorities throughout the world that cancer can be cured only when it is recognized in its early stages. The achievements in surgery now enable the surgeon to perform wonders in this disease.

It is advised that every person, no matter how well he may seem to be, report to a physician for examination every six months. If this rule is followed universally it is probable that unsuspected cancer will be discovered in its early stage.

Impaired health with vague and mild pain somewhere in the body should always be carefully investigated. Unfortunately, too many seek medical relief when the pain has become severe and the cancer has advanced beyond hope of recovery.

Fear Causes Delay

When radium or X-ray is used, it should be applied only by a physician who has been trained in this work. In the hands of an unqualified person radium is a dangerous substance and may cause great harm.

It can readily understand why the word "cancer" arouses such fear. For years this disease has been associated with death. But cancer need not be a fatal disease. In neglect lies the danger.

Many live in fear of cancer, yet they refuse to have medical advice. Such persons are misled by false advertising and induced to use unscientific remedies. Thousands of dollars are wasted every day in purchasing unreliable and often dangerous medicines.

The American Medical Association has endeavored to combat this menace by exposure of claims made by charlatans. Despite these efforts, quackery in cancer cures still exists. It will continue to exist as long as the public gives financial support.

Never buy a remedy that has not been sanctioned by your physician. If you are in doubt about your health, consult with your doctor or apply for advice at a hospital clinic. This is the only safe procedure.

A breath-taking thrill comes along on the average of every two minutes throughout this unique and spectacular Fox picture. The combination of remarkable photographic effects, weird settings along the glamorous Nile, and the work of a brilliant cast, results in a most extraordinary piece of screen fare.

Edmund Lowe takes the dramatic honors in the title role, with Bela Lugosi as the sinister Revor and Henry B. Walthall as the inventor, Regent Irene Ware's beauty, Herbert Mundin's flair for Cockney comedy and Weldon Heyburn's villainy all add to the unusual appeal of the film. The youngsters will insist on seeing this anyway—and the grown-ups will find in it the surprise of the year.

It is getting so hard for a man to find a wife who will help him wash the dishes.

Polly Moran likes her comedy "straight"

The popular "other half" of the team of Dressler and Moran, famed for laughs ever since their first appearances together, and especially for "Caught Short," "Redneck" and "Politics" can't see the use of sophisticated comedy at all.

"It's gotta be big to get laughs," insists Polly, who is co-starred with Miss Dressler in their latest laughmaker, "Prosperity" opening Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

"Here we play mothers-in-law, battling over our children," says Polly. "We could have played sarcastic old ladies, with biting quips that would have been funny, perhaps, to what they call the cognoscents or something like that—but we like to make lots of people laugh. I don't mind getting slapped in the face by a swinging door if I know that it's going to make a million or so people laugh and forget their troubles."

Christmas Trade

THE period of Christmas trade is the high tide of retail business for the year, and it makes a big difference to Circleville where the money spent at this season shall go. Shall we back up our own industries, support our own trade, and thereby give our community a good business start for 1933? Or shall we let this money drift hither and thither, and be largely dissipated, as far as the welfare of our community is concerned?

Our merchants have done a very fine job in preparation for the holiday season. They have provided themselves with splendid assortments of every kind of thing that can be needed for holiday gifts or the needs of the winter. Every wish that your friends may have, every need of their households, can be supplied in these stores of ours. They are rich with the best modern products, assembled from all over the world.

It is like visiting some fine exposition to go through our stores at this season, when the stocks reach their maximum figure, and see how completely they are provided for every kind of modern need.

Another marvelous feature of their service is the low prices now offered. The producers of the world have come down to bed rock in production costs, and have placed their merchandise on the market at prices that have not been seen since the World War. It is not going to be expensive to supply your families and friends with nice and appropriate gifts for this Christmas season.

Let us buy our gifts at once, remembering how much overwork we shall save to store and postal employees, if we distribute the Christmas rush as much as possible. Buy early and buy at home, should be the slogans of the Christmas trade.

Christmas always reminds some persons to do their shopping early next Christmas.

Overfed Tax-Eaters

THERE have been officeholders since the very beginning of recorded history at least. And, naturally, there have been taxpayers for the same length of time. The two go hand in hand. They are inseparable. One cannot exist without the other.

Since the officeholder depends for his very existence upon the taxpayer, one would think that occasionally at least, he would express his appreciation to the man who pays his salary. But history, so far as we know, gives no example of any such expression of gratitude.

Taxpayers, however, have repeatedly shown their appreciation of the sacrifices and patriotic service of the public servants by keeping the public trough full. Of course the officeholders and jobholders could argue that if they hadn't helped themselves the trough might often have run dry.

Wearing time has come and the sucklings resist. They cannot understand why the taxpayers should refuse to continue supporting them in the manner to which they have been accustomed. Why, they demand, should they be made to suffer merely because stupid taxpayers are suffering? The loyal slave should gladly undergo every torture for his master. (They finally admit that they have been the masters, not the servants of the people.)

It is hard to put even the parasite on his own, especially when you are responsible for having made him a parasite. The people could not do it if there was any way out. Why did no one foresee the evil consequences of building up that vast army of government dependants?

WHODDLE!

By FRANCIS WALLACE
A GREAT FOOTBALL ROMANCE

SYNOPSIS

Ted Wynne leaves his position in the steel mill at Bellport to work his way through college. He loves Barb Toth, daughter of wealth, and realizes he could never ask her to marry a mill hand. At Old Dominion, Ted throws promise as a football player. Tom Stone, star player and one of Bellport's elite, is antagonistic towards him. When Ted is forced to give up football because it conflicts with his job, Barney Mack, the coach, gets him a position that will not interfere. Ted passes his examinations with honors and wins the respect of his classmates. He goes home for a visit.

CHAPTER III

Across the river the bessemer converter belched its ruddy flame into the cold morning sky—blowing iron into steel by the terrific force of air that came through the holes of tuyères and fought its way through the molten mass to freedom, carrying with it the dross; then Flannagan would dump eighty-six pounds of manganese into the five tons of purified iron and it would become steel—magic stuff, manganese.

Ted's steps led away from the dungeon mill this morning, towards joy and hope; it was symbolic—he was in the converter himself, now, being blown and tossed about; being purged of the dross. His flame was muddy and red, now, but near the end it might be smooth and brilliant. He could understand the blowing of strong currents through his being; but he would still be iron unless somebody provided the magic manganese; and what was the manganese?

Life was interesting, if you lived it; if you climbed from the valley prison to the top of the hill and challenged the wind to blow.

He had come a day early to surprise his parents. Stealing softly around to the kitchen he looked through the window. His mother, with a flannel kimono over her nightgown, was preparing breakfast—he could smell the coffee; she was getting old but was still pretty, especially when her face was flushed like that. His father was warming his shoes before the stove—a habit.

Obviously preparing for one more in a long succession of days in the mill and home—going about their business; but Ted knew he was their business; that life was over for these two except as he lived it.

The idea frightened him. He pulled his hat down and knocked at the kitchen door.

"Who can that be at this hour?" Mother's voice was a little strange; but his father's was as rough and strident as always in the morning.

"It's a bum. Send him away; there's plenty of work."

Ted knocked vigorously. "You never can tell whose boy he might be," his mother said. The door opened, giving out a rush of warm air. Ted head down, mumbled:

"Lady, I'm out of work. Could you give me a cup of coffee?"

"Step in, poor boy; we've only got a bite but you're welcome."

His father looked resentful. Ted sat down at the end of the table while his mother went to the stove. He banged on the table and roared:

"How long does a fellow have to wait on some breakfast around here anyhow?"

His mother turned swiftly, dropped the cup of coffee on the floor: "My boy!"

His father smiled, before breakfast for the first time in twenty years.

Ted did a lot of talking during the meal; and was very cocky. He had been away a long time; many times he had planned this homecoming—and every play had worked perfectly.

"Sorry—going with Tom," she replied. "Where have you been all week?"

"Come on, seven—Barbie needs shoes." Yes—Barbie needed shoes like the moon needed light.

Barbie got her seven. She usually did; not because she needed it. Barb liked to gamble with the boys—poker, blackjack, craps; she howled when she lost but she usually won; she always won from Ted.

"Come on, Ambitious, what this time?" It had started as a nickel game in a corner of the kitchen during Janet's party. Barb had found the game and it began to go up. She had pooled with Stone against the gang. Ted had lost seven dollars. "Pitch in, Wynne; quitting?"

Stone's voice was sarcastic. Barb's eyes were tempting, taunting, smiling, daring. It was always a contest with Barb. Ted went through his pockets; counted his money; put a dime back and shoved the rest in the pot.

"Ten cents for carfare home—shooting seven bucks." Stone's eyebrows lifted. Barb's eyes glittered. They had not gone above a dollar previously. She counted out the money.

"My dice—shooting seven bucks." "All right—you're faded." "Barbie needs a permanent—come on sev—"

Sev came. Stone counted the money. Barb smiled triumphantly into Ted's eyes.

"You can't beat me," she said softly, "at anything."

Ted had a lot of time to think about that remark for he went to work before the furnaces the next morning. He had lost his carfare back to school and, although he might have dipped into his bank account, kept his budget straight by working for the money—three days pulling up would do it. The weather was cold and he could do it.

Barb had been pleasant the first evening—eyes enchantingly free of mockery, dewy with sweetness, a promise of heaven, the girl of his dreams; a blonde elfin beauty—slender, willowy, evanescent.

But Barb couldn't stay that way long—when life became a shimmering pool in a garden she threw rocks into the pool; when she had seen how things were between him and Stone she had deliberately played around with Tom. Ted had taken an emotional licking; and he couldn't beat her even at a crap game.

Barb had his number. She knew it, and she rubbed it in. What could he do about it? He loved her very perversity; and you couldn't do more than shoot the works.

Some time she might shoot box cars and lose—and Ted knew he wouldn't ever rub it in. It hurt too much—a girl could hurt a boy but a boy shouldn't hurt a girl.

He called to ask her to the New Year's Eve dance at the Club.

"Sorry—going with Tom," she replied. "Where have you been all week?"

"Had to catch up on some work." "Janet hasn't got a date."

So Ted took Janet, Barb's sidekick in the game. Barb was nice when she saw him.

"Sorry, Ted—really. Where were you all week?" "I told you."

"You're all right." "Thanks."

He was absurdly happy for awhile, just to hear her say that. Then Stone came along and she went away, gurgling like a fountain.

After the dance they went to Barb's home for a party; it seemed the gang had done it every year since their high school freshman year; there had always been a mock wedding. Ted and Janet were elected as principals. Stone, with plenty of liquor on his breath, officiated.

"Kiss her," the gang demanded after the ceremony.

Janet's kiss was surprisingly warm, Ted thought. He was mildly shocked. She had always been nice to him but all of the girls in the gang had; he hadn't really noticed Janet before; that is, as a girl whom it might be pleasant to kiss.

Beware of 'Sure-Cure' For Cancer

Most of Them Useless and Many of Them Are Dangerous

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City.

RECENTLY, WHEN the newspapers printed the story of a man who had been poisoned by drinking radium water, nationwide interest was aroused. Such preparations as were used in this case, as well as other remedies claimed to be cancer cures, have been submitted to careful investigation for years. False claims have been exposed and the public has been warned against doubtful remedies and "sure cures", particularly for cancer and tuberculosis.

For a generation the scientific world has worked untiringly in an effort to discover a cure for cancer. No certain means of relief has been found to date, but valuable knowledge concerning cancer has been revealed.

In Early Stages

It is the opinion of leading authorities throughout the world that cancer can be cured only when it is recognized in its early stages. The achievements in surgery now enable the surgeon to perform wonders in this disease.

It is advised that every person, no matter how well he may seem to be, report to a physician for examination every six months. If this rule is followed universally it is probable that unsuspected cancer will be discovered in its early stage.

Impaired health with vague and mild pain somewhere in the body should always be carefully investigated. Unfortunately, too many seek medical relief when the pain has become severe and the cancer has advanced beyond hope of recovery.

Fear Causes Delay

When radium or X-ray is used, it should be applied to by a physician who has been trained in this work. In the hands of an unqualified person radium is a dangerous substance and may cause great harm.

I can readily understand why the word "cancer" arouses such fear. For years this disease has been associated with death. But cancer need not be a fatal disease. In neglect lies the danger.

Many live in fear of cancer, yet they refuse to have medical advice. Such persons are misled by false advertising and induced to use unscientific remedies. Thousands of dollars are wasted every day in purchasing unreliable and often dangerous medicines.

The American Medical Association has endeavored to combat this menace by exposure of claims made by charlatans. Despite these efforts, quackery in cancer cures still exists. It will continue to exist as long as the public gives financial support.

Never buy a remedy that has not been sanctioned by your physician. If you are in doubt about your health, consult with your doctor or apply for advice at a hospital clinic. This is the only safe procedure.

AT THE GRAND
"Chandu the Magician," in film form, as introduced on the screen of the Grand Theatre yesterday, proves to be grand entertainment for anybody.

A breath-taking thrill comes along on the average of every two minutes throughout this unique and spectacular Fox picture. The combination of remarkable photographic effects, weird settings along the glamorous Nile, and the work of a brilliant cast, results in a most extraordinary piece of screen fare.

Edmund Lowe takes the dramatic honors in the title role, with Bela Lugosi as the sinister Roxor and Henry B. Walthall as the inventor, Regent Irene Ware's beauty, Herbert Mundin's flair for Cockney comedy and Weldon Heyburn's villainy all add to the unusual appeal of the film. The youngsters will insist on seeing this anyway—and the grown-ups will find it in the surprise of the year.

It is getting so hard for a man to find a wife who will help him wash the dishes.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Polly Moran likes her comedy "straight."

The popular "other half" of the team of Dressler and Moran, famed for laughs ever since their first appearances together, and especially for "Caught Short," "Reducing" and "Politics," can't see the use of sophisticated comedy at all.

"It's gotta be big to get laughs," insists Polly, who is co-starred with Miss Dressler in their latest laughmaker, "Prosperity," opening Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

"Here we play mothers-in-law, battling over our children," says Polly. "We could have played sarcastic old ladies, with biting quips that would have been funny, perhaps, to what they call the cognoscenti or something like that—but we like to make lots of people laugh. I don't mind getting slapped in the face by a swinging door if I know that it's going to make a million or so people laugh and forget their troubles. I didn't even mind when everybody kidded me about my broken nose. Wounds are just badges of honor to soldiers and comedienne."

MAKING BREAD COUNT AS A FOOD EXTENDER

Keeping down the cost of the family's food means using a lot of bread—there is no getting away from that, apparently, nor from the problem of how to make bread count for most throughout the week in terms of nutrients and variety. For most families, according to the Bureau of Home

Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, bread is probably the cheapest energy food. Once certain other essential kinds of food are provided, as a balance to safeguard health, bread can be used in emergencies "to fill up on" so that there may be food enough. Tastes vary, of course, and costs likewise, in different parts of the country, but probably the cheapest bread is the one-pound loaf that is bought at the store for 5 cents—or sometimes for less if it is a day or more old. This bread is cheap because it provides more calories for the money than almost any other food would give, it is ready to use, without cost of fuel, or time or labor at home, except in the serving. There, however, in the serving, come the housewife's problems. How can loaf bread be served in enough different ways to prevent monotony? And to carry most food value?

Bread is one of the important food extenders. A little meat flavor, a little cheese, or egg, or fruit or vegetable can be made to go much farther when combined in some way with bread, and the bread is then made to seem like something else. And — not forgetting food values — these combinations can often be made into a whole meal in one dish.

The simplest combination, no doubt, and one of the best for the money, is plain milk toast. In food value, white bread provides chiefly the fuel value of its starch. There is also some protein from the wheat and some added food value if the bread is made with milk instead of with water alone. There is no better supplement to bread than milk, for it contains more of the values bread lacks than does any other single food.

French toast made of slices of bread dipped in egg and milk and browned in fat is considerably more nutritious than bread by itself, and it tastes very different, too. The egg adds protein, milk, erals, and vitamins, little of which are found in the bread.

Ground beef is cheap. When broiled on slices of toasted bread, the bread takes up the juices and the flavor of the meat, and makes an appetizing dish for dinner, lunch, or supper. A cheese sandwich, toasted and served with tomato sauce is almost a whole meal in one dish, for the cheese adds some of the necessary values and the tomatoes fill out the rest. Onion soup with toast and cheese can be used in much the same way, for it, too, contains most of the necessary kinds of food.

Instead of toast in slices, little cubes or croutons may be used to make a dish attractive. A savory stew may be served or with croutons, as preferred. Eggs scrambled with croutons is another attractive way to make an egg dish go farther.

Bread crumbs, dry or buttered, soft or toasted, may be used in ways too numerous to mention. They make stuffings, of course, and puddings. They are used in baked dishes, as thickeners, and to cover the top. They are used in meat loaves, meat balls, scalloped dishes, batter cakes, and fruit betty.

The nutrition specialist always points out in any discussion of bread the importance of using at least some each week that is made from whole-grain grain. A grain of wheat, rye, oats, or barley is composed largely of starch, but also contains proteins, some minerals, especially phosphorus, iron, and calcium, and some vitamins, especially A and B. The minerals and vitamins, however, are found almost entirely in the germ and the outer coats of the grain, and these parts are separated as the grain goes through the milling process. In the white flours, or any highly milled form, these very nutritious parts of the grain are usually lost. Whole wheat or graham flour, and the whole-grain grains of other kinds retain these important values.

Health is half of success

Few men achieve their goal without vitality and drive. And so many are held back from their best by a common ailment: constipation. It dulls energy, often causes head aches, sleeplessness. It takes the vim out of your day's work.

Correct constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Helen Mills of the fifth grade was on the six weeks honor roll. Delno Steele has been confined to his home for the past two weeks with pneumonia.

Miss Skinner's, Miss Campbell's and Miss Chilcote's room will give the Christmas program Thursday evening, Dec. 22.

Lucille Patterson underwent an operation at White Cross hospital for appendicitis.

The Perry team came out even in their games with Darbyville last Friday evening, the girls losing 11 to 25 and the boys coming through with a 26 to 15 victory.

The girls contest was somewhat one-sided with the Muhlenburg asses having the edge over Atlanta. Overmeyer was high scorer for Atlanta with 6 points.

The boys game was somewhat different with the Atlanta boys showing determination to win in a fast and furious battle which ended with Atlanta on the long end of a 28 to 15 score.

The whole team started clicking as a unite in passing and on the defense, the Perry boys demonstrated the kind of basketball that has won for them three games out of the four they have played so far this season. They started out at the beginning to pile up a lead which they never relinquished.

Our next game is with Clarksburg on our floor.

The box score was as follows:

MAKING BREAD COUNT AS A FOOD EXTENDER

Keeping down the cost of the family's food means using a lot of bread—there is no getting away from that, apparently, nor from the problem of how to make bread count for most throughout the week in terms of nutrients and variety. For most families, according to the Bureau of Home

Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, bread is probably the cheapest energy food. Once certain other essential kinds of food are provided, as a balance to safeguard health, bread can be used in emergencies "to fill up on" so that there may be food enough. Tastes vary, of course, and costs likewise, in different parts of the country, but probably the cheapest bread is the one-pound loaf that is bought at the store for 5 cents—or sometimes for less if it is a day or more old. This bread is cheap because it provides more calories for the money than almost any other food would give. It is ready to use, without cost of fuel, or time or labor at home, except in the serving. There, however, in the serving, come the housewife's problems. How can bread be served in enough different ways to prevent monotony? And to carry most food value?

Bread is one of the important food extenders. A little meat flavor, a little cheese, or egg, or fruit or vegetable can be made to go much farther when combined in some way with bread, and the bread is then made to seem like something else. And—do not forget—getting food values—these combinations can often be made into a whole meal in one dish.

The simplest combination, no doubt, and one of the best for the money, is plain milk toast. In food value, white bread provides chiefly the fuel value of its starch. There is also some protein from the wheat and some added food value if the bread is made with milk instead of with water alone. There is no better supplement to bread than milk, for it contains more of the values bread lacks than does any other single food.

French toast made of slices of bread dipped in egg and milk and browned in fat is considerably more nutritious than bread by itself, and it tastes very different, too. The egg adds protein, minerals, and vitamins, little of which are found in the bread.

Ground beef is cheap. When broiled on slices of toasted bread, the bread takes up the juices and the flavor of the meat, and makes an appetizing dish for dinner, lunch, or supper. A cheese sandwich, toasted and served with tomato sauce is almost a whole meal in one dish, for the cheese adds some of the necessary values and the tomatoes fill out the rest. Onion soup with toast and cheese can be used in much the same way, for it, too, contains most of the necessary kinds of food.

Instead of toast in slices, little cubes or croutons may be used to make a dish attractive. A savory stew may be served or with croutons, as preferred. Eggs scrambled with croutons is another attractive way to make an egg dish go farther. Bread crumbs, dry or buttered, soft or toasted, may be used in ways too numerous to mention. They make stuffings, of course, and puddings. They are used in baked dishes, as thickeners and to cover the top. They are used in meat loaves, meat balls, scalloped dishes, batter cakes, and fruit betty.

The nutrition specialist always points out in any discussion of bread the importance of using at least some each week that is made from whole-ground grain. A grain value of wheat, rye, oats, or barley is composed largely of starch, but also contains proteins, some minerals, especially phosphorus, iron, and calcium, and some vitamins, especially A and B. The minerals and vitamins, however, are found almost entirely in the germ and the outer coats of the grain, and these parts are separated as the grain goes through the milling process. In the white flours, or any highly milled form, these very nutritious parts of the grain are usually lost. Whole wheat or graham flour, and the whole-ground grains of other kinds retain these important values.

JACKSON-TWP

Students of high school and grades are working very diligently to make the Christmas program a success. The program will be given Thursday, Dec. 22, 1932 at 7:15. There will be no admission charge.

The fourth grade won the attendance banner for last week. Miss Baker is the fourth grade teacher.

Several women of the community have been sewing at the school building for the Red Cross. They served two days last week and are planning to sew again this week.

The Christmas vacation begins Friday Dec. 23, and school will be resumed Monday Jan. 2, 1933.

The boys and girls basketball teams continued their winning streak Friday night. This time the Williamsport teams were the victims. The girls score was 51-21 and the boys was 33-17.

Next Friday we journey to Salt-creek for our first game away from home. There will be a preliminary game between the Salt-creek and Jackson eighth grade teams. The game will start at 7:00 o'clock.

On Tuesday, December 20 the Jackson Boys' team will play Washington here. As Washington has no girls team the Jackson Girls' will play the Alumni.

DARBY SCHOOL NOTES

Christmas Seals will be sold in the schools on December 16th. It is hoped that each pupil in the schools will be able to purchase at least one seal and thus be able to say that he has done his bit toward the elimination of tuberculosis.

Do not forget that the Christmas Program "Christmas Around the World" and the P. T. A. meeting will be held together on the evening of December 23. The program will begin at 8:00 o'clock.

Our basketball games with the Scioto teams were postponed until after Christmas because of the fear that there might be an exposure to scarlet fever. These games will be played some time after Christmas.

Another change in the basketball schedule has been made. The game with the Alumni teams will be played Friday night, Dec. 16 at 7:30. The admission will be 15c for adults and 10c for children. On the evening of December 22 we will go to Pickaway-twp school and be entertained by their teams.

The Christmas vacation will begin Friday evening, Dec. 21 and end Monday morning, Jan. 2, 1933.

Rev. Fleming of the M. E. church of Mt. Sterling gave a splendid address in chapel last Friday afternoon. He talked about the opportunity takers, the opportunity makers, and the opportunity makers in a very interesting and entertaining manner.

Mrs. Dorothy Cooke Auble of Spencer, Ohio, a former teacher and H. S. Prin. in our schools, was a visitor last Friday.

Health is half of success

Few men achieve their goal without vitality and drive. And so many are held back from their best by a common ailment: constipation. It dulls energy, often causes headaches, sleeplessness. It takes the vim out of your day's work.

Correct constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red and green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Lucille Patterson underwent an operation at White Cross hospital for appendicitis.

The Perry team came out even in their games with Darbyville last Friday evening, the girls losing 11 to 25 and the boys coming through with a 26 to 15 victory.

The girls contest was somewhat one-sided with the Mulhernburg lassies having the edge over Atlanta. Overmeyer was high scorer for Atlanta with 6 points.

The boys game was somewhat different with the Atlanta boys showing determination to win in a fast and furious battle which ended with Atlanta on the long end of a 26 to 15 score.

The whole team started clicking as a unite in passing and on the defense, the Perry boys demonstrated the kind of basketball that has won for them three games out of the four they have played so far this season. They started out at the beginning to pile up a lead which they never relinquished.

Our next game is with Clarksburg on our floor.

New Holland should have an easy time with Williamsport.

One of the hottest battles on tonight's card will in all probability take place down in Salt Creek-twp where the Jackson boys will visit and if Jackson keeps on showing the power and aggressiveness it has exhibited in its games there will be a battle royal that any fan would hate to miss.

The Monroe and Walnut-twp game will see a coach of one school send his team against the team of his former coach. Bud Castor, who is the mentor of the Monroe aggregation, was a former player under Wilbur Griffith of Walnut.

Muhlenberg will hop over into Washington's territory tonight.

Collier's Names All-American 11

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Selections for Collier's All-American football team, which is a perpetuation of the original All-American founded by Walter Camp, were announced today. The players chosen are:

In awarding the Walter Camp gold footballs to these men, the judges declare that "there has rarely before been a season in football in which team play approached such standards of excellence and when so many stars were upon practically even terms."

Honorary mention for the various positions is given to a large number of outstanding players.

SEASON OF DEFENSE

"This has been a season in which alert, powerful defensive play was a leading factor," the judges report. "The defense in many important games left the attack bottled up, either stopped cold or held to one decisive thrust. It was a year of strong lines, good ends and strong, hard-tackling defensive backs. It was a hard year on the ball carrier, on the brilliant, elusive type of back who once ruled most of the headlines. In game after game he found the highway blocked, the open path well closed.

"Those who saw Colgate in action got a clear idea of how eleven men can be blended into a fast, skillful unit. In almost every Colgate contest one amazing execution of reverses and double reverses, spinners, laterals and forwards. Deception, speed and skill, perfectly directed by Soleau, gave rival teams and admiring crowds a bewildering picture to look at.

"In addition to this there was the terrific speed and power that Notre Dame hurled against the Army.

"On the opposite side there was Michigan's type of attack, which depended largely on kicking and passing. But in each instance there was a rugged, smart defense thrown out against all hostile movements. The 1932 season had more than its share of almost impregnable ramparts ready to stand off enemy thrusts. It was the power of the defensive line of Texas Christian University, featuring Boswell and Vaughn, that won the Conference crown of the Southwest. Even a back as able as Stafford of Texas could make no headway here.

CITE PITT SCHEDULE

"One of the leading features of the season was the killing schedule which Pittsburgh played without dropping to defeat. The Panthers were thrown against West Virginia, Duquesne, Army, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Carnegie Tech, and Stanford, a campaign that included at least eight hard games. While there were two drawn battles against Ohio State and Nebraska, both fine teams, there had to be brief breathing spells somewhere along this heavily guarded path, thick with trouble, from start to finish. Pittsburgh's sudden thrust against Notre Dame, after a stout defense of its own goal nearly all afternoon, was one of the most spectacular accomplishments of the year.

In a season of strong defensive football, Notre Dame's tidal-wave attack against a strong Army team stands out. It is seldom that one sees such combined speed and power, such a mixture of blocking and charging and stout-legged ball carrying as Notre Dame offered before 80,000 spectators in this game in which two thirds of the South Bend team seemed to be potential All-America candidates."

CROSS EYE CLINIC

NEW YORK—A clinic for the correction of "cross-eyes," with-out restoring to surgery, has been opened at the Fifth-ave. hospital. The treatment is similar to that given at the Royal Westminster Eye Hospital in London. Recently developed instruments are used in the exercising of the eye muscles.

TOMORROW CHEVROLET PRESENTS A NEW SIX

Longer • Larger • Faster • Smoother • New in Styling • More Economical • And Featuring Fisher No-Draft Ventilation

TOMORROW will be Chevrolet Day throughout America. And the new car that millions have been watching and waiting for—the latest product of the world's leading builder of automobiles—will go on display: the New Chevrolet Six—at a new scale of low prices. Front, side, rear—inside, outside—everything about this new car is advanced, improved, exciting. Longer wheelbase makes it the biggest automobile in today's low-price field. The latest principle of car design, "Aer-Stream" styling, gives it a totally different, ultra-modern appearance. The new Fisher bodies are larger, wider—faultlessly streamlined—swung lower to the road—and offer the first basic improvement in travel comfort in over ten years: Fisher No-Draft Ventilation. Chevrolet performance in every gear is faster, flashier, more brilliant. The time-proved six-cylinder engine is more powerful as well as more economical. Improved Free Wheeling is combined with a "silent second" Syncro-Mesh gear-shift. Chevrolet engineers have developed a remarkable new invention that wins a complete victory over vibration: The Cushion-Balanced Engine Mounting. And as far as prices are concerned, several models now sell at the lowest figures in Chevrolet history. Chevrolet is able to do all this because Chevrolet has the advantage of being the world's largest builder of cars for 4 out of the past 6 years. Chevrolet builds cars in greater volume—buys materials in greater quantities—does everything on a bigger, more economical scale. Hence, Chevrolet is in a position to provide a better car at a better price than could possibly issue from any other source. The leader can accomplish what others dare not try!

About This And That

BY THE
SECOND GUESSER

THAT Dutch Clark, rated the best professional football player in the nation, may be head football coach at his alma mater, Colorado State college, was expressed in various circles, Friday, with a shakeup in the Colorado mining school staff in the offing. ** Clark should make an excellent coach. He is one of the cleanest cut athletes to ever grace an Ohio gridiron, performing with the Portsmouth Spartans in case you do not know it. ** His sporting ability has been clearly shown during the past season and his ability established in the fact that he was the only unanimous choice for any berth on the mythical pro teams. ***

A FEW OF THE HIGHLIGHTS OF THE PROFESSIONAL GRID SEASON INCLUDE:

A 77-yard punt by Clark Hinkle, Green Bay fullback, the longest of the year. ** ALL KICKS WERE MEASURED FROM THE LINE OF SCRIMPAGE THUS MAKING THIS BOOT ALL OF 90 YARDS. ** A 50-yard pass from Dutch Doering to Luke Johnsons of the Chicago Bears against the Spartans. ** Three field goals during the season, all by Dutch Clark of Portsmouth.

Snow, ice and arctic temperature have forced the Chicago Bears and the Portsmouth Spartans to seek shelter. Their post-season playoff game for the National Professional football league championship will be played indoors at the Chicago stadium, instead of outdoors at Wrigley field. The battle is scheduled for Sunday night.

The extreme cold wave forced the contending teams to decide on an indoor game. The stadium can accommodate 15,200 fans for football, but the playing field is smaller than the regulation gridiron, measuring only 80 yards in length and 45 yards in width.

Collier's Names All-American 11

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Selections for Collier's All-American football team, which is a perpetuation of the original All-American founded by Walter Camp, were announced today. The players chosen are:

In awarding the Walter Camp gold footballs to these men, the judges declare that "there has rarely before been a season in football in which team play approached such standards of excellence and when so many stars were upon practically even terms."

Honorary mention for the various positions is given to a large number of outstanding players.

SEASON OF DEFENSE
"This has been a season in which alert, powerful defensive play was a leading factor," the judges report. "The defense in many important games left the attack bottled up, either stopped cold or held to one decisive thrust. It was a year of strong lines, good ends and strong, hard-tackling defensive backs. It was a hard year on the ball carrier, on the brilliant, elusive type of back who once ruled most of the headlines. In game after game he found the highway blocked, the open path well closed.

"Those who saw Colgate in action got a clear idea of how eleven men can be blended into a fast, skillful unit. In almost every Colgate contest one amazing execution of reverses and double reverses, spinners, laterals and forwards. Deception, speed and skill, perfectly directed by Soleau, gave rival teams and admiring crowds a bewildering picture to look at.

"In addition to this there was the terrific speed and power that Notre Dame hurled against the Army.

"On the opposite side there was Michigan's type of attack, which depended largely on kicking and passing. But in each instance there was a rugged, smart defense thrown out against all hostile movements. The 1932 season had more than its share of almost impregnable ramparts ready to stand off enemy thrusts. As was the powerful defensive line of Texas Christian University, featuring Boswell and Vaught, that won the Conference crown of the Southwest. Even a back as able as Stafford of Texas could make no headway here.

CITE PITT SCHEDULE

"One of the leading features of the season was the killing schedule which Pittsburgh played without dropping to defeat. The Panthers were thrown against West Virginia, Duquesne, Army, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Carnegie Tech, and Stanford, a campaign that included at least eight hard games. While there were two drawn battles against Ohio State and Nebraska, both fine teams, there had to be brief breathing spells somewhere along this heavily guarded path, thick with trouble from start to finish. Pittsburgh's sudden thrust against Notre Dame, after a stout defense of its own goal nearly all afternoon, was one of the most spectacular accomplishments of the year.

In a season of strong defensive football, Notre Dame's tidal-wave attack against a strong Army team stands out. It is seldom that one sees such combined speed and power, such a mixture of blocking and charging and stout-legged ball carrying as Notre Dame offered before 80,000 spectators in this game in which two thirds of the South Bend team seemed to be potential All-America candidates."

Takes New Post

Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, recognized as one of the world's leading physicists, a member of the American Physical Society, who has been appointed director of the Bureau of Standards by President Hoover. Dr. Briggs, who succeeds the late Dr. George K. Burgess, has been connected with the bureau since 1920.

It is unlawful for anyone to sell motor vehicle fuel or to engage in that business in Ohio without securing a license from the Tax Commission of Ohio.

CROSS EYE CLINIC

NEW YORK—A clinic for the correction of "cross-eyes," without restoring to surgery, has been opened at the Fifth-ave. hospital. The treatment is similar to that given at the Royal Westminster Eye Hospital in London. Recently developed instruments are used in the exercising of the eye muscles.

TOMORROW CHEVROLET PRESENTS A NEW SIX

Longer • Larger • Faster • Smoother • New in Styling • More Economical • And Featuring Fisher No-Draft Ventilation

TOMORROW will be Chevrolet Day throughout America. And the new car that millions have been watching and waiting for—the latest product of the world's leading builder of automobiles—will go on display: the New Chevrolet Six—at a new scale of low prices. Front, side, rear—inside, outside—everything about this new car is advanced, improved, exciting. Longer wheelbase makes it the biggest automobile in today's low-price field. The latest principle of car design, "Aer-Stream" styling, gives it a totally different, ultra-modern appearance. The new Fisher bodies are larger, wider—faultlessly streamlined—swung lower to the road—and offer the first basic improvement in travel comfort in over ten years: Fisher No-Draft Ventilation. Chevrolet performance in every gear is faster, flashier, more brilliant. The time-proved six-cylinder engine is more powerful as well as more economical. Improved Free Wheeling is combined with a "silent second" Syncro-Mesh gear-shift. Chevrolet engineers have developed a remarkable new invention that wins a complete victory over vibration: The Cushion-Balanced Engine Mounting. And as far as prices are concerned, several models now sell at the lowest figures in Chevrolet history. Chevrolet is able to do all this because Chevrolet has the advantage of being the world's largest builder of cars for 4 out of the past 6 years. Chevrolet builds cars in greater volume—buys materials in greater quantities—does everything on a bigger, more economical scale. Hence, Chevrolet is in a position to provide a better car at a better price than could possibly issue from any other source. The leader can accomplish what others dare not try! CHEVROLET MOTOR COMPANY, DETROIT, MICHIGAN

My friends say it's marvelous the way I reduced."

Cancer Treated by Thunderbolt

Above is the apparatus used in the most sensational experiment in the history of science, which was conducted recently in Berlin. The machine generates the synthetic thunderbolt with which scientists sent an electrical charge of 2,500,000 volts through the cancerous arms of a 55-year-old farmland in an attempt to cure the disease. The fact that the subject of the "kill or cure" experiment still lives gives scientists hope for its success. Inset is Dr. Fritz Lange, who developed the apparatus, used for splitting atoms, which made the experiment possible.

as chairman of the flower committee. Miss Seyfert closed the business session and presented Miss Mary May Haswell, chairman of the program committee. The beauty and solemnity of the program was enhanced by the appropriate Christmas decorations which formed a fitting background for the various numbers. On one side of the stage a humble manger strewn with hay was built and beside it Miss Katherine Bochart posed as the Madonna. On the other side was a huge Christmas tree radiantly decorated and illuminated.

The opening number of the program was a selection of scripture read by Mrs. Dorothy Sampson. A song was rendered by three boys and three girls gathered round the manger where they sang, "Away in a Manger." The following participated: Dolly Madison, Virginia McDowell, Mary Smith, George D. McDowell Jr., Billy Lewis and Bobby Porter.

Two Christmas carols led by Miss Haswell were sung by the club after which Miss Helen Marion delighted the members with a solo entitled "O Holy Night" by Adams.

Another number intensely interesting was a Christmas story read by Mrs. Tom Renick. The various characters of "The Candle in the Forest" by Temple Bailey were cleverly interpreted by Mrs. Renick.

Miss Mary Mae Haswell charmingly sang "Sleep Holy Child" by Norman and the program closed with the club singing "Silent Night." All musical numbers were accompanied by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

Cancer Treated by Thunderbolt

Above is the apparatus used in the most sensational experiment in the history of science, which was conducted recently in Berlin. The machine generates the synthetic thunderbolt with which scientists sent an electrical charge of 2,500,000 volts through the cancerous arms of a 55-year-old farmhand in an attempt to cure the disease. The fact that the subject of the "kill or cure" experiment still lives gives scientists hope for their success. Inset is Dr. Fritz Lange, who developed the apparatus, used for splitting atoms, which made the experiment possible.
